

Student collecting data for volumetric soil moisture to determine when to schedule the next irrigation.

View of Campus Community Garden from the north, which includes demonstration plots (foreground) and student plots (background).

A student allotment garden planted in early-May, which includes tomato, cabbage, lettuce, and melons.

Student allotment gardens, including some that were planted in early-May (foreground) and some that will be planted in early-June (background).