Hi Morgan,

Below is the email chain where Mohamed and Evan agreed to the $20,078 from carbon credit sales funds for the ethics training. Thanks!

Charge forward!

Meredith, I elected not request funds from the provost. This was really too little to bother. I like to save him for when I need 'real' money.

Best,

Evan

Hi Evan

Good to hear from you from the cabin on the mountains of Colorado 😊

We are good and working in the wonderful lands of Illinois.

Yes, I would be very happy to support this investment from the Carbon funds

Many thanks and keep safe

Hello, Mohamed

I hope you and your family are all well. Leslie and I are at our cabin in Colorado. We came out for spring break and when things got bad we decided to stay. I'm not sure when we'll come back. Maybe the end of April.

I was hoping for your approval to spend $20,078 from our carbon funds. This would cover the cost of developing a sustainability module for ethics training. Andreas was bullish on the idea at our last SC meeting.

Best wishes,
Evan

Subject: cost for ethics training course development

Hi Evan,

As we discussed in this week's iSEE meeting, the ethics training course committee has nearly finished the scripts and the next stage is to develop an online course via a professional company. Meredith has contacted the Ethics Office and other sources, and it looks like the maximum cost for the course development is $20,078. See the message from the ELM team, which has been working with U of I Ethics Office for training course development. We plan to have a meeting with Ethics Office director in the near future and will finalize the cost and the contractor for the work.

I hope this is sufficient for you to communicate with F&S Exe. Director for an approval of using the Carbon Credit funding to pay it. If you have any questions, please let me know.

Best

Ximing
